REPORT

The glorious tradition of architecture, sculpture and temple building flows from ancient India. The unique invention of Indian psyche's superlative imagination and aesthetics is visible in the architecture. From the Vedic period to the Indus-Saraswati civilization, the Maurya Empire, the Gupta Empire, there has been a continuous development of architecture and craftsmanship. There is an Upveda available by the name of Sthapatyaveda. In the name of Ashtanga architecture, the idea of building architecture through different dimensions has been considered. Along with the concepts of direction, planets, constellations, VastuPurush, Vastu Shastra, the selection of stones, their transportation and the method of direct construction were studied deeply. It has been discussed in many such texts like Samarangan Sutradhar, Agnipuran, Maymatam, Manasar, Yukti Kalpataru, etc. The symbol of creation, which is called Shri Yantra or Mount Meru, we see the manifestation of that concept in the construction of temples. Indian architectural thought tries to balance the relation of Vastu to the earth and the universe. Despite the brutal invasion of Muslims and other invaders and the destruction of millions of temples and architecture, the number of architectural works available now is also very amazing. This creation and construction is so amazing that the secret of its creation, mechanism is not known. It is very important for every Indian to be familiar with ancient architecture.

Chera Kingdom

- The Chera dynasty was one of the principal lineages in the early history of the present day state of Kerala and some parts of Tamil Nadu in southern India.
- The Chera country was geographically well placed to profit from maritime trade via the extensive Indian Ocean networks. Exchange of spices, especially black pepper, with Middle Eastern and Graeco-Roman merchants are attested in several sources.
- The Cheras of the early historical period (c. second century BCE - c. third century CE) are known to have had their original centre at Karur in Tamil Nadu and harbours at Muchiri (Muziris and Thondi (Tyndis) on the Indian Ocean coast (Kerala
- Archaeology has found epigraphic and numismatic evidence of the Early Cheras. Two almost identical inscriptions discovered from Pugalur (near Karur) dated to c. 1st - 2nd century CE, describe three generations of Chera rulers of the Irumporai lineage.
- A number of coins, assumed to be of the Cheras, mostly found in the Amaravati riverbed in Tamil Nadu, are a major source of early Chera historiography
